L-29 Legendary Portraits by Celebrated Photographer Rivka Katvan

Renowned photographer Rivka Katvan, one of Broadway Cares/Equity Fights AIDS' most ardent champions, began taking backstage photographs in 1978. She has documented the celebrated stars of Broadway and the theater community for more than four decades. Since 1996, Rivka and her husband, Moshe Katvan, have donated more than 100 extraordinary legendary portraits of Broadway's best, raising more than $300,000 for Broadway Cares. Today, she offers a collection of beautifully captured private moments with Broadway's most celebrated artists.

- A. Carol Burnett and Julie Andrews: In the summer of 1999, Rivka Katvan captured the magic of the 53rd Annual Tony Awards. This was a splashy night that featured original musicals like Parade, Fosse and Footloose, and notable wins for actors such as Judi Dench, Kristin Chenoweth, Bernadette Peters and Martin Short. But there was a special moment that took place offstage when two living legends – Carol Burnett and Julie Andrews – united in the dressing room. In this rare photo by Katvan, the pair, who famously starred together in the 1962 musical variety special Julie and Carol at Carnegie Hall, put on the finishing touches to their glamorous looks. Hold on to a piece of theater history that captures an iconic friendship.
- B. The Ultimate Merrily We Roll Along Package: When the late, great Stephen Sondheim's Merrily We Roll Along premiered on Broadway in 1981, it was a fast flop – but one that was still destined to become legendary. It closed after only 16 performances, but its thrilling score would go on to become adored over the decades. Now you can own a piece of Broadway history with original cast member David Cady's 40+ year-old, hand-copied vocal score edition of "Merrily We Roll Along." Even better, this prize truly bridges the old and the new because in addition to being signed by Cady along with his rehearsal notes hand-written in pencil in October 1981, it is also signed by the stars of the glorious 2024 Tony Award-winning revival that rocked Broadway: Jonathan Groff, Lindsay Mendez and Daniel Radcliffe.

In addition to this music from the Merrily vault, own a special trio of photos capturing Sondheim in his element: in a rehearsal room. Photographer Rivka Katvan managed to isolate the maestro's specificity, focus and passion – qualities that ultimately defined his career. Plus, take home a poster from the 2024 revival of Merrily signed by Groff, Mendez and Radcliffe.
